The theme of parenting in Vijayalakshmi Sushilkumar's collection of short stories "Dhandora Kadhaigal," particularly in the story titled "Yennai Maranthatheno," revolves around the consequences of focusing solely on academic or material success at the expense of teaching essential human values like compassion and empathy. The story highlights how parents, despite providing the best education for their child, fail to impart these crucial lessons. As a result, their child grows up without understanding the importance of humanity, leading to a tragic outcome where the parents are left alone in their later years, realizing the emptiness caused by this neglect. Thus, the story serves as a poignant reminder of the importance of balanced parenting that nurtures both academic achievements and moral development.
